

SCHS art displayed in Austin and San Diego

Summer Creek High School freshman Heidi Carreno's artwork was chosen to be displayed in Austin for Texas Art Education Association's Youth Art Month exhibit. Carreno's artwork was selected 1 out of 100 pieces from grades K-12 all around Texas. This year Carreno's art piece, "Tools of the Trade" was hung in the Capitol building in Austin.

SCHS art teacher Sandra Newton expressed how proud she is of Carreno. "I am so incredibly proud of Heidi. She is a wonderful student with such a bright future. It was great to see her recognized at the reception in Austin. Heidi and her parents were very proud, and they should be."

Her art was then moved to the Bob Bullock Texas State History Museum in Austin for the month of March. It is now one of seven pieces chosen to go to San Diego, California to represent the state of Texas.

"It was nice to be recognized for my work and I am excited that it is going to represent Texas in San Diego."

Her work, along with only seven other pieces, was chosen to travel to San Diego, California to represent the state of Texas for the annual National Art Education Association Conference.

The Texas Art Education Association will also showcase grades K-12 artwork at the Texas Association of School Boards and the Texas Area Supervisors Association convention in the fall.
