

AP Studio Art: 3D Design Course Description

Through studio practice, application of design concepts and informed decision making, students will assemble a body of artwork demonstrating a high level of knowledge of technique and process, quality and may demonstrate evidence of growth. Students should have previously been exposed to basic skills including drawing, design and creative thinking.

Students will develop mastery in composition, execution and concept.
Students will address three components in their portfolios:

Section 1: Quality

Section 2: Concentration

Section 3: Breadth.

Students will submit this body of work to the College Board for grading and subsequent possible college credit in May.

Students are expected to use artistic integrity throughout the course. Work based on published photographs or the work of other artists must move beyond duplication to illustrate an original idea.

3D Design Portfolio:

Students will expand their three dimensional design skills and advance their visual communication skills by exploring a variety of design processes and techniques and compositional and aesthetic concepts.

Expectations:

Homework – Students may receive specific homework assignments or be required to work on or complete some inclass assignments at home.

Sketchbooks, Visual Journals or Altered Books – Students will use a sketchbook as a visual journal to develop ideas, to practice drawing and design skills and to record their journey through the process. Sketchbooks will include both assigned work as well as be a tool for developing and recording ideas.

Critiques – Critiques will be an expected part of this course. A variety of critique procedures will be incorporated throughout the year.

3D Design Portfolio

Students will produce approximately 20 works that satisfy the requirements of the Quality, Concentration and Breadth sections of the AP Studio Art 3D Design Portfolio.
